The law optional is divided into two parts.

- The Law Optional Paper 1 contains more conceptual than technical content. This essay is divided into three parts. Administrative law, international law, and constitutional law.
- Law Optional Paper 2 is more technical and harder. It has two parts:

Part 1 â?? Law of Torts and Law of Crimes

Part 2 â?? Mercantile Law, Law of Contracts, and Contemporary Legal Developments

In this article, we will share some Strategy for Law Optional for UPSC.

Interest

When selecting an optional subject, one should prioritise their interest in that subject. If law interests you, you can pursue it since it is not technically complex, and you donâ??t require any prior legal training. The topic is not as technical as the subjects in the core sciences. Anyone can choose to participate in this elective as long as they are interested. Although it makes things simpler, being a law graduate is not required. You can learn enough about the nuances and concepts of law if you have a decent textbook and a sincere interest in learning it.

Proper scheduling

The law optional course has a massive syllabus. Remember that it will take some time to complete and plan accordingly. Having adequate study resources and receiving the right direction from elders and professors are additional crucial factors in selecting the best optional subject.

Make Notes for Law Optional Subject

Reading a lot of books wonâ??t help you figure this out but reading a few good books with true attention and effort would. Making notes and practising answering questions can help you write pertinent bits without even giving it much thought. Donâ??t avoid your syllabus; look over it several times to see what parts are still relevant. Since FRs and SCs are topics that require thorough coverage. Always note how different topics differ in terms of the time and resources needed for each.

Classroom Coaching

Go for classroom coaching. You graduated from law school and followed the universityâ??s curriculum as well as the UPSC Law optional Syllabus. The most that someone might require is a mentor or a test series. The only thing that classroom coaching does is organise things for you in a straightforward, lucid manner with proper printed notes and test series, so you donâ??t have to run and read through many books, which is fair to say it saves a lot of time.
